

TICKET IS NAMED

Committees Appointed to Formally Notify Roosevelt and Fairbanks of Their Nomination--Incidents of the Convention's Last Day.

Chicago, June 23.—Theodore Roosevelt was nominated at 1:12 this afternoon. Nine minutes later the announcement that he had received the 994 votes in the convention brought the delegates to their feet with cheers and flags and standards were waved. The nomination of Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana, for vice president was made by acclamation at 2:07, and at 2:26 p. m. the convention adjourned.

Chicago, June 23.—At 10 o'clock this morning the big convention hall was rapidly filling up with prospects of every seat, being filled when order is called.

10 15 a. m.—Chairman Cannon has just reached the platform.
10 29 a. m.—The convention is called to order by Chairman Cannon.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

10 32 a. m.—Rev. Thaddeus E. Snively opened the convention with prayer.

10 44 a. m.—Ex-Governor Black of New York, in a spirited speech, places President Roosevelt in nomination.

11 07 a. m.—Ex-Governor Black has just finished speaking; great applause. Delegates are on their feet.

11 09 a. m.—Chairman Cannon on the platform with a flag. Bands are playing, delegates on their feet; massive picture of Theo. Roosevelt shown on the platform, which brings forth great applause.

11 10 a. m.—Delegates of New York are making a circuit of the hall while the band is playing "Star Spangled Banner."

11 12 a. m.—Chairman Cannon leads in singing the "Star Spangled Banner." The band is now playing "Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

11 15 a. m.—The convention is still shouting "Roosevelt."

11 17 a. m.—Chairman Cannon again appears on the platform with a tattered flag; brings forth renewed cheers. The convention is in an uproar.

11 18 a. m.—The entire audience is singing "Star Spangled Banner." No signs of order. Delegates with red, white and blue umbrellas are making a circuit of the hall.

11 30 a. m.—Chairman Cannon is using the gavel to bring the convention to order. Senator Beveridge of Indiana, seconds Roosevelt's nomination.

12 35 p. m.—Ex-Gov. Bradley of Kentucky, seconds the nomination of Roosevelt.

12 50 p. m.—Jos. B. Cotton of Minnesota, seconds Roosevelt's nomination.

1 10 p. m.—The clerk is now calling the roll of states.

1 12 p. m.—All the states from Alabama to Indiana have cast their entire vote for Roosevelt.

1 21 p. m.—Roll call ended with no name mentioned but that of Roosevelt, getting the total of 994 votes of the convention.

1 24 p. m.—Senator Charles O. Fairbanks of Indiana is nominated for vice president by Senator Dolliver of Iowa.

1 31 p. m.—Senator Depew seconds the nomination of Fairbanks.

1 55 p. m.—Gov. Pennypacker of Pennsylvania, seconds Fairbanks.

2 51 p. m.—Former Senator Carter of Montana, seconds Fairbanks.

2 03 p. m.—Fairbanks was nominated for vice president by a unanimous vote after the announcement of the withdrawal of other candidates.

2 15 p. m.—A resolution was passed naming Jos. G. Cannon, chairman of the committee to notify Theodore Roosevelt of his nomination on July 27, and Elihu Root chairman of the committee to notify Senator Fairbanks of his nomination for vice president on August 2d.

2 26 p. m.—The convention adjourned sine die.

KNOWLEDGE

That Ticket Would Be Roosevelt and Fairbanks Made It Impossible to Feel Excitement.

Chicago, June 23.—Something akin to enthusiasm dominated today's session of the Republican national convention.

SENATOR CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS.

vention. The air of expectation ordinarily in evidence, when great events are about to come to pass, was lacking. The knowledge that the ticket would be Roosevelt and Fairbanks made it impossible for one to feel or show excitement. But the public flocked to the hall in far greater numbers than on the preceding days, because a feast of spell binding oratory was in prospect.

The leaders were late in coming. Some of them, like Senator Dolliver of Iowa, had burned midnight oil preparing the speeches they were scheduled to deliver today. Senator Fairbanks of Indiana, deemed it the part of propriety not to appear at all. "I shall not attend the convention today," said he. There is a movement afoot, however, which looks to a reconsideration of this decision. Many of the delegates want the Senator to put in his appearance at the psychological moment so that there may be an opportunity for one great outburst—an outburst of the kind that makes American national conventions famous.

DOLLIVER

In Spread-Eagle Speech Placed the Indiana Senator, Mr. Fairbanks, in Nomination.

Chicago, June 23.—The speech of Senator Dolliver of Iowa, placing Senator Fairbanks in nomination for the vice presidency, was in characteristic spread eagle style. He paid a glorious tribute to the policies of the Republican party and to leaders who are responsible for the adoption of these policies. Gradually and adroitly he led up to the characterization of the silent Indian whose qualities of statesmanship were fittingly eulogized. His peroration, placing Fairbanks in nomination was in the following words:

"While he has not sought to constrain the judgment of the convention, directly or indirectly, he has kept himself free from the affectation which undervalues the dignity of the second office in the gift of the American people and I do not doubt but his heart has been touched by the voluntary expression of universal good will which has already chosen him as one of the standard bearers of the Republican party of the United States. The office has sought the man and he will bring to the office the commanding personality of a statesman equal to any of the great responsibilities which belong to our public affairs. I take pleasure in presenting the name of Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, honored everywhere throughout the United States as our candidate for vice president."

PRESIDENT KEPT INFORMED.

Washington, June 23.—The most complete and up-to-date system for rapid handling of convention news ever installed in the White House has furnished President Roosevelt with information at every step of the proceedings in the Coliseum at Chicago. In addition to frequent messages from his lieutenants and cabinet officers, the president received the complete report of the Scripps-McRae Press association over its leased wire direct from the convention hall.

AFTER FAIRBANKS' PLACE.

Indianapolis, June 23.—Now that Senator Fairbanks is to be the nominee for the vice presidency, Governor Durbin, Congressman Hemenway and Charley Landis are mentioned to succeed Mr. Fairbanks in the United States senate. The contest will be a lively one.

COLISEUM

Drew a Crowd Thursday, As This Was the Day of Oratorical Pyrotechnics in the Big Show.

Convention Hall, Chicago, June 23.—This is the third, the last and the greatest day of the Republican national convention. It was the apotheosis of the big show—the climax to which the events of the past two days have been the introduction. Today Theodore Roosevelt was nominated to succeed himself in the White House and Charles W. Fairbanks, senator from Indiana, was named for vice president.

This was a day of oratorical pyrotechnics. Some of the finest speakers in the Republican party, chosen from the east and west, north and south, were heard in a common chorus of praise and adulation for the men who are to lead the Republican hosts in the approaching campaign.

FIGHT

For Senate in Indiana Will Be a Lively One—Several Men Want Mr. Fairbanks' Place

Chicago, June 23.—Senator Fairbanks' nomination for the vice presidency opens the door to a spirited fight for the United States senate in the Hoosier state. Governor Durbin has been working for some time with the successorship to Senator Fairbanks in view; Congressman Landis is a lively candidate; Representative Hemenway, chairman of the appropriations committee of the house, is one of the heirs direct of the Fairbanks organization strength, although weakened a little by the springing of a rival candidate in his own district; and Representative Crumpacker has also staked his claim into the ring. He announced his candidacy unequivocally here today.

"I shall go into the scrap," he said. "It is nobody's fight, although Governor Durbin has been working a little longer than any one else."

Auto Collapsed.

Zanesville, O., June 23.—Six young Newark people who came to attend the Beta Phi convention, left home at 7 a. m. and got here at 3 p. m. They had trouble on the way with their auto.

PREDICTION

That Parker Will Be Nominated on the Second Ballot Made by Norman E. Mack.

New York, June 23.—Norman E. Mack, New York's member of the Democratic national committee, has returned after a trip through the Southern states. He said:

"I am now convinced that Parker will be nominated on the second ballot, if not on the first. He will have practically the solid South with him. Some of the Southern states have not instructed for Parker, but all of them are in favor of his nomination. No other candidate is mentioned in the South, and no candidate has been suggested anywhere on whom an anti-Parker combination could be effected. Votes for favorite sons may prevent the nomination of Parker on the first ballot, but it is certain that he will win on the second. He has with him the states which will give the votes that are necessary to elect a Democratic president, and he is the only man in sight who has a good chance to carry these states."

JUDGE ALTON B. PARKER.

"What do the Democrats of the South think of Judge Parker's policy of silence?" was asked.

"He has lost nothing by attending to his duties as chief justice of the court of appeals and refusing to go on the political stump," Mr. Mack replied. "I found that the Democratic leaders think all the more of him on account of the strength of character he has shown in keeping quiet under the circumstances. They believe that Judge Parker is a man who cannot be turned from what he considers his duty by any clamor."

TELEGRAM

SENT FROM STATE LEAGUE TO THE NEW YORK MINISTER

Whose Congregation - Suffered in Steamship Disaster - Proceedings of the Meeting Thursday.

The second day's session of the Ninth annual convention of the Lutheran League of Ohio opened in St. Paul's church Thursday morning with devotional exercises led by Rev. O. D. Baltzy of Mansfield. A short business session was held after which four papers were read on "Our Young People's Needs," by F. H. Ottman, Oliver Weaver, Miss Feudner and Miss Hinton.

The rest of the morning session was taken up by a practical demonstration of league work by Rev. C. L. Fry of Philadelphia.

After the morning session a midday lunch was served in the Sunday school rooms to the visiting delegates by the local Lutheran League.

Among the reports submitted was a remarkable one from the Lutheran League of Chillicothe, consisting of 20 members of Rev. Mr. Schnur's church. Last year this league gave $800 toward the erection of a new church building and $55 for other purposes. There were no money-making schemes used to raise this money.

North Brothers Island last week: "The Luther League of Ohio in convention assembled at St. Paul's church, Newark, Ohio, is in heartfelt sympathy with you in your great affliction, by unanimous standing vote authorized this message. We pray that God may uphold you by His Almighty arm, comfort you by His Spirit and help you to believe that all things work together for good to them that love God. The convention joined in prayer with Pres. F. P. Bossart."

The Augsburg confession, question- box and election of officers occupied Thursday afternoon. Tonight's program at 7:30:

WAR BULLETINS

Chifu, June 23.—It is reported that the Japanese made a determined land and sea attack on Port Arthur yesterday.

Liao Yang, Manchuria, June 23.—General Kurovatiun has personally taken charge of the Russian army here.

Tokio, June 23.—Dispatches received today announce that the advance guards of the armies of General Oku and Nodzu have effected a conjunction near Kai Ping.

NEW OTTERBEIN TEACHER.

Westerville, O., June 23.—Professor E. T. Durant has been elected to the chair of geology and biology of Otterbein university to succeed Dr. Whitney.

DAYTON'S POPULATION.

Dayton, O., June 23.—According to the annual report of the board of trade, the population of Dayton is 92,568.

HARDSHIP TO MANY.

Dresden, O., June 23.—The closing down of the Franklin Everhart & Co. and the United States Cereal company has worked a great hardship upon many residents of this community who were holders of stock to the extent of over $30,000.

Farmers, widows, orphans, professional men and clergy were interested in the concern, and the loss in many cases represents the savings of a lifetime.

Ball Pitcher's Misfortune.

Lancaster, O., June 23.—David Carpenter, a baseball pitcher, suffered the loss of his right hand in an edging machine at the Eagle machine works. Carpenter retired from professional baseball, temporarily, this spring, to learn a trade and will now never again be able to play.

Fredericktown — Mrs. Ann Rush, 82, was buried today from Union chapel.

House of Commons Debates.

Old members of the house of commons are usually of the opinion that the debates, compared with twenty or thirty years ago, are now more businesslike and less oratorical than they were. Some welcome the change and, rejoicing in the greater efficiency of the house as a governing assembly, praise the conversational style of speaking now so much in vogue as less stilted than the old. Others, regretting the loss of the picturesque, distressed that the house should be less attractive as a show, condemn the new manner as more slipshod. There is agreement that the average member takes less trouble with the form and phrasing of his speeches.—London Spectator

Indian Territory Settlers.

The summer and fall of 1904 will witness the greatest emigration to Indian Territory of any year in the history of the territory. Thousands of those who go will be entirely ignorant of the conditions, areas and people there. The total land area of Indian Territory is 21,000 square miles. The population in 1890 was 180,182, and in 1900 it was 292,000, an average yearly increase of 21.76 per cent. At this rate the population for the year 1903 was 657,555, and at the close of the year 1904 it will be 790,034. There are 87,000 Indians and 20,000 negroes on citizenship rolls.—Kansas City Star

MORE BODIES ARE FOUND

Total Number Now is 883, With 100 Unidentified--One Hundred Policemen Begin a Systematic Canvas of the Stricken District in New York.

New York, June 23.—They are finding victims of the Slocum disaster much slower now and it appears as if the great bulk of dead had been gathered. The total number of bodies found up to 9 o'clock this morning was 883, of which 780 have been identified. There is no accurate list of the missing and beginning today 100 policemen under the direction of Police Commissioner McAdoo are to make a thorough canvass of the stricken district. The policemen will go from house to house and make a thorough canvass of the dead and missing. The work will take two or three days. Twelve funerals have been arranged for today. Among those to be buried are three children in one house at No. 532 East Fifth street, and two children from the home of Edward Kline, No. 31 Avenue A. Mr. Kline has already buried two other members of his family who were lost in the disaster.

Institute an Aerie at Mt. Vernon With Charter Membership of 100—Newark Men Present.

Mt. Vernon, O., June 23.—Kokosing Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles was instituted here Tuesday afternoon. J. J. Fultz and W. M. Koons are past president and presidents respectively.

Another session was held in the early part of the evening, during which the team from the Newark aerie put on the secret work in a very pretty manner.

At the banquet, W. M. Koons presiding, addresses were made by Messrs. Hamilton, Watkins, Dr. Legge and Charles Henry, of Newark.

The local aerie starts off with a membership of one hundred. This order was organized six years ago in Seattle, Wash., by eight members of the theatrical profession. This is the seventeenth aerie instituted in Ohio, and there are now 29,000 members in this state.

SKIPPING FOR HEALTH.

Youthful Amusement Advocated by a British Physician.

HELPS LUNGS AND REDUCES FAT.

Valuable as an Exercise For Young and Old of Both Sexes, Says Dr. Francis Bond—Experience of a Corpulent Woman at Skipping the Rope—Famous Prize Fighters Who Have Been Skippers.

In the National Review Dr. Francis Bond of London speaks in high praise of skipping the rope as an exercise for young and old of both sexes. It costs nothing, it can be done at home, it needs no partner or opponent, it helps the lungs, it keeps down fat.

"Not the least of its merits," writes Dr. Bond, "is the ease with which it can be graduated to meet the capacity of even the feeblest tyro. Skipping is essentially a rhythmic exercise. It is this essentially rhythmic feature of skipping which enables it to be graduated so precisely. The skipper who adjusts his movements to a definite rate per minute may be assured that in ten minutes he is expending just ten times the energy that he expends in one minute.

"Although skipping, like all other movements which call the muscular system generally into play, exercises a distinctly beneficial influence on those muscles which it most uses, it is to its effect on the heart that we must look for the criterion of its value from a physiological point of view, for the heart is the muscle which, above all others, needs to be trained for sustained physical effort of any kind. Whatever tends to strengthen the heart promotes the circulation and aeration of the blood through the lungs, the increase of the secretions and of the general tone of vitality throughout the whole body.

"There is also another consideration which the adult who embarks in skipping must keep in view, and that is the possible existence of mischief in the lungs or in some other part of the body which may be intensified by too sudden an increase in the circulation of the blood. If the mischief is known to exist it will be easy to test the effect of skipping upon it by careful observation of graduated employment of the exercise.

"The deposit of fat in different parts of the body, though primarily a physiological process and one which has its unquestionable uses in the animal economy, easily passes into a condition in which it becomes a disease. In this condition it is due to one of two causes, or in some cases to a combination of both—over eating or drinking or want of the exercise which can alone balance such indulgence. A lady writer, who speaks with no mean authority on all that relates to female hygiene, says, in speaking of skipping, that 'for keeping corpulence at bay there is nothing to equal it,' and relates the experience of a poor but unhappy lady of her acquaintance who, being threatened with embonpoint, adopted the advice of a candid friend and took to skipping as her daily exercise. Living in a neighborhood where the barrel organ nuisance is rampant, she is proof of the saying that 'it is an ill wind that blows nobody any good,' for she so manages her work that as soon as the daily organ reaches her end of the street she can take her skipping rope into her paved back yard and skip in regular measure to its rhythmic if noisy music. She is now slim and upright as a dart, bright of face and ready for anything.

"In such a case as this the effect of the increase of the circulation produced by skipping is to remove the superfluous and practically dead tissue (fat), in which the disease of obesity consists, by the augmented local nutrition which it sets up. But the victims of this unhappy affliction will delude themselves if they imagine that they can easily rid themselves of the incumbrance of their 'too, too solid flesh' by the aid of skipping alone or of any other therapeutic agency, however much it may be vaunted for the purpose, without at the same time tackling the evil at the other end by cutting off the excess of food which is the prime cause of it."

Dr. Bond mentions Jem Mace, the pugilist, as having used skipping to get himself into training for ring encounters. He might have cited more modern examples. The only John L. thought there was nothing like it. In a single session of profusely sweating skipping, when he was beginning training and in bad condition, he could reduce his weight by six pounds. Other famous prize fighters use the rope a great deal.

A Champion Bootblack.

Among the little known but keenly contested honors is that of being the champion bootblack of London. Since the title was created two years ago it has been held by W. Couts, but recently at the annual competition at the headquarters of the Central (Reds) Shoeblack society in Great Saffron hill at London the honor was won by G. Smith, who for a year will have the right to wear a gold medal and bar says the London Express. At a given signal the six competitors attacked the boots of six members of the committee, and the rapidity with which the transformation from dirty to clean was effected was marvelous. Lord Kinaird, who was present, distributed the prizes won.

OFF FOR THE FRONT.

Manner of Transporting Russian Troops—Behavior of Officers.

At Moscow I was present at the departure of officers for the seat of war, says the Siberian correspondent of Le Journal of Paris. There were about fifty of them on board the train which I took. Colonels of Cossack regiments, elegant officers of the guard and young lieutenants were all exuberant and gay. Oh, with what enthusiasm they started! There was but one moment of sadness, and that was at the station, where the men bade farewell and gave the last kisses to wives, children, mothers and sisters. But the moment the train got under way all tenderness and affection vanished. The officers met in the dining car, clasped hands and congratulated each other. For them going off to the war was a fine feast, which was continued far into the night. The officers of high rank were many hours already at rest when the young captains and lieutenants were still drinking champagne to the expected victories of the Russian army.

It was at Samara that I witnessed the departure of the troops. Samara is a town of 100,000 inhabitants. It is at the point of bifurcation where the greater number of the railroads of European Russia join the Transsiberian line. The soldiers used at first to travel in third class carriages, but now for the most part they are transported in baggage wagons which have been fitted up for them. These wagons are furnished with stoves and berths, and they are well ventilated. Each soldier is fully supplied with blankets. The morale of the troops is excellent. They all appear to be delighted and proud of the chance to participate in the first engagements. They do not take their meals in the wagons. They eat at the railroad stations, where refectories have been established. In this way they get better food, and they have plenty of time to walk about after each meal, because the administration has taken measures to enable the men to have eight hours' rest on land every day.

FIRST BURMESE NOVEL.

Serial Publication Giving an Insight Into Native Life and Customs.

A new departure in Burmese literature, in the form of a publication of a Burmese novel, has been welcomed in Burma, says a correspondent of the Lahore Tribune. To every one familiar with the literature of the Burmese—and, unhappily, they are not many—there is no doubt that this departure will be welcomed as a relief from the tedious tales printed in ponderous volumes and written in conventional style. An educated Burman well known in Rangoon has had the happy idea of writing the novel serially on the lines of those issued daily by publishers in other countries. The task was one beset with many difficulties, the first and greatest of these being the language itself, for its flexibility in expressing new ideas makes it, we are told, a very unwieldy instrument in the hands of even the most accomplished scholar. The cause of this stiffness is to be found in the evolution of Burmese literature.

The first Burmese novel which introduces this new departure from conventional literature, and surprised and even astonished Burmese readers, has appeared in serial form in the Friend of Burma and will shortly be published in book form with illustrations. The story is entitled "Maung Gin Maung Ma Maydo Vathu." It is interesting, we are assured, not only as to its plot, but as giving much valuable insight into Burmese family life and into the customs and practices of the Burmese people. Burmese life is painted, not as seen through European glasses, but from within by one who had lived and is living in it.

Korean Customs.

"The Korean," said the Rev. C. T. Collyer, lecturing at the Anthropological institute in London, "never cuts his hair or beard. To do so is considered a mark of dishonor to his parents, whom he strongly reverences. Any hairs that may happen to come out, and even the parings of his finger nails, are carefully saved and put into the coffin with him in order that he may go back to mother earth intact."

Mr. Collyer also mentioned that the system of identification by finger prints, which was introduced into Europe recently, had been practiced in Korea for many centuries, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. He had been able to trace back its use for 1,200 years in the deeds for the sale of slaves. The slave was required to place her hand—all the slaves are women—upon the sheet of paper on which the deed was written and the outline of the fingers and thumb was then traced, after which an ink impression of each of the fingers was taken.

General Kuroki's Alleged Descent.

Several French soldiers, survivors of the Chinese expedition of 1856, are responsible for the statement that General Kuroki, who is leading the Japanese forces in Manchuria, is in reality half French, says the New York Tribune. His name, they say, is properly spelled Curique. According to the story of these soldiers, a French officer, Captain Curique, while serving in China in 1856, married a Japanese girl. A son was born to them who was given the Japanese name Kuroki, corresponding to the French Curique. This son is General Kuroki. Captain Curique died last year in France. Until the last he corresponded with his son, who has since become famous.

Jean Teterault's Secret

[Original.]

Jean Teterault was a Canadian Frenchman who by saving his pennies had acquired considerable means. Jean not only observed a proper economy; he descended to parsimony.

One night Jean was lying awake thinking of some way to add to his holdings. His bed was so placed that he could look out of a back window toward a hill in the rear of his house. He was surprised to see a light just beneath the hilltop moving about among a clump of trees.

"That's very strange," remarked Jean to himself. "What can any one be doing there?"

Jean suddenly formed a resolution to go and find out what it meant; so, jumping out of bed, he hastily donned his clothes and, going out of the back door, climbed the hill. When he came near enough he stopped and watched.

But he was too late to discern what had occurred. A man and a woman were just leaving the place. The man held up a lantern to remove its lamp and blow out the light, and as he did so Jean caught a glimpse of his face and that of the woman as well. They were Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Brazeau, whom he knew well by sight and reputation, a wealthy young couple whose country place was not far distant. As soon as the light was extinguished Jean could hear them moving away through the bushes toward a road, and a few moments later he heard the closing of a carriage door and wheels creaking on the stones.

Jean went home and to bed, but the next morning he rascended the hill to the place where he had seen the couple, and there, in a secluded spot in the center of thick bushes, he came upon a space four feet long and two feet wide where the earth had been dug up and the cavity refilled.

Jean's first impulse was to remove the earth and see who or what was buried there, but a neighbor whose property adjoined the place came along and prevented.

"Have you heard of the good fortune of the great people living below, the Brazeaus?" asked the man.

"No. What is it?" "The only child of Brazeau's elder brother, who inherited the most of their father's estate, is dead, and Pierre Brazeau will now be twice as rich as formerly."

Jean made no reply to this announcement, but he did a great deal of thinking. It was plain to him that the little he had been put out of the way by those next of kin and buried at the dead of night, when no eye except Jean Teterault's was looking. Here was an opportunity if properly followed up for a large accession to his own fortune.

After much deliberation he decided not to run any risk in tampering with the grave. What he did was to write Pierre Brazeau a note informing him that he knew of the secret burial. To this he received no reply. Then he wrote another note stating that he conceived it to be his duty to inform the authorities. To this a reply came offering him a large sum of money to keep his mouth shut. Jean was delighted, but the sum offered was not large enough. He replied that his conscience would not admit of such a thing. More correspondence followed, and at last Jean consented to meet Mr. Brazeau at the place of the grave to receive a sum far greater than he could have hoped as the price of silence.

On the appointed night Jean went up the hill with a light heart. He proposed as soon as he had received the bush money to go to France and live to the end of his days in that sunny land. On approaching the place he heard a cough, which guided him to Pierre Brazeau, who was standing beside the grave. Jean had no sooner joined him than Brazeau gave a whistle, and immediately several persons bearing dark lanterns came forward from opposite directions. Jean was thunderstruck.

"Mr. Magistrate," said Brazeau to one of them, "I have desired your presence here to make confession and show you the evidence of a crime. But for this good man it might never have been known."

He motioned to one of the men who bore a spade, and he began to dig. Presently the spade struck wood, and an oblong box was removed. The lid was unscrewed, and when it was lifted off the box there lay the body of a poodle with a pink ribbon around its neck and the name "Daisy" inscribed on its collar.

"Mr. Magistrate," said Brazeau, "I am a murderer. My wife's pet dog showed symptoms of hydrophobia and I poisoned it. Mrs. Brazeau and I secretly buried it here on these few acres which we own. Mrs. Brazeau shrunk from attracting attention by the honor she wished to do her pet dog so loved, and we buried it when we supposed no one would see us. I desire, Mr. Magistrate, to make a clean breast of this matter and give you all the evidence, especially the record of this good man's conscientious efforts in behalf of justice."

He handed the magistrate a batch of letters he had received from Teterault. The magistrate glanced them through by the light of a lantern, then bent his gaze on the conscientious man who had written them and who was now shivering at the consequences of his efforts in behalf of justice. But without speaking to him the magistrate turned to Brazeau:

"If you do not give me your word of honor to appear against this man tomorrow on a charge of blackmail I will take you and put you in jail with him."

Brazeau gave the required promise, and Teterault would have served a term in prison had he not given his own bail and fled to his beloved France.

Some Comic Sayings By Small Youngsters

"JOHNNY," said the teacher, "can you name the three graces?" "Yes, ma'am," replied Johnny. "Breakfast, dinner and supper."

A lady visitor had occasion to consult her watch, which was very small, and little five-year-old Mabel, seeing it, exclaimed, "Oh, what a young watch you have!"

One morning four-year-old Margie had pancakes and sirup for breakfast. After she had eaten the cakes there was some sirup left on her plate and she said, "Mamma, please give me a spoon; my fork leaks."

Tommy, aged six, had some difficulty with the children of a neighbor one day. That night after he was in bed his mother asked if he had said his prayers.

"Yes, mamma," he replied. "And did you pray for the heathen, too?" she asked.

"Yes," he answered slowly, "all but those next door."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

C. Lyon Was at Home.

When Charles Hannelly of New York, a well known politician, arrived at the arsenal in Central park the other morning he found on his desk a card: "Mr. Hannelly, call up C. Lyon, 140 Tremont."

Straightway he rang up the number specified, and this conversation ensued: "Hello! Is this 140 Tremont?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is C. Lyon there?"

"Yes, sir; six of them."

"Which one telephoned to me?"

"None of them. We don't allow our sea lions to telephone."

"Where is C. Lyon now?"

"He's out in the tank, sir. Shall I call him in?"

"Who is this?"

"The Bronx zoo."

Mr. Hannelly collapsed.—New York News.

Paid the Penalty.

Once there was a man—a real flesh and blood man—who made fun of his wife's cooking.

"I believe I could get up a better meal than this myself, Arabella," he said.

"I am glad to hear it," she replied. "You may get up the meals yourself hereafter. I won't."

For the Rose Jar.

Subtle, suggestive and dreamful as is the fragrance of flowers it is a wonder that housekeepers do not manufacture their own stock wherewith to distill odors delicious as those from "Araby the blest." It takes but little time and attention, and the result is extremely satisfying.

Gather fresh roses in the morning as soon as the dew is off, or even before, if it be oppressively warm, in which case they should be plucked from their receptacles and dried before packing. See that no insects are concealed beneath the leaves, and discard yellow centers and green sepals. Such fragrant roses as the old fashioned damask are best, but all roses contain some essential oil. Then in a large bowl of glass or china place a layer of petals, then one of pure fine salt, lightly sprinkled. Set it, well covered, in a dry, shady place, and add to it day by day all the petals that can be secured. Stir up the roses before adding a new layer, and so continue until the blossoms have disappeared, or long enough to make at least two weeks from the first gathering. By this time the roses will be "cured" and will appear moist—wet perhaps if they were not perfectly dry when plucked.

War Orthography.

NOW that the Japanese and Russ have got into an awful muss, Papers are filled with such odd names They seem like cacographic games.

Togo, of course, is easy stuff; Mikuroki is not very rough. But quite different is the matter When we come to Yamagata.

ALIMONY

PRAYED FOR BY MRS. DAVID HOFFER, OF THIS CITY.

Answer in Savings Bank Case is Filed—Court House Pickups and Day's Realty Transfers.

Charlotte Hoffer, by her attorneys, Smythe & Smythe, has commenced suit in the common pleas court for alimony from her husband, David Hoffer. The plaintiff says that the defendant, on the 13th of June, 1904, abandoned her, declaring his intention to leave her and to never return. She also charges the defendant with accusing her of being unfaithful to him. She accuses him of infidelity and says that the defendant has in the keeping of the E. H. Everett company about $400, which he threatens to draw and leave the country with for the purpose of preventing her from having the benefit of any part of it, and that the E. H. Everett company be restrained from paying the defendant any part of the money due him. An injunction, as prayed for, was allowed by Judge Seaward.

Answer Filed.

In the case of A. Lowenthal vs. The Newark Savings Bank company and others, Henry Scheidler, a defendant, has filed a demurrer to the petition of the plaintiff, for the reason that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

Tramps Took Charge.

A vacant house in the West End, belonging to Mr. E. Shimmel, was taken possession of on Monday night by a gang of hoboes. It is said that at a late hour in the night the hoboes became involved in a free-for-all fight, during which a number of bricks were hurled through the building and the house damaged to the extent of about twenty-five dollars.

Sanitary Reform.

The Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette, published in New York City, has in its July number an article from Dr. C. P. King, of this city, on the subject of "Sanitary Reform." The importance of the authorities taking action with regard to the prevention of diseases, especially tuberculosis, is shown. The writer takes the view that it is contagious and that the patient should be isolated.

Fine Strawberries.

The editor of The Advocate is indebted to Mr. A. M. Nichol, of Granville, for some fine strawberries of his own raising. Mr. Nichol has by experimenting produced one of the finest berries we have ever seen in the market. He has given it the name of "Nichol's Granville." This berry has a wide reputation and Mr. Nichol now has a great demand for both the plants and berries.

Miss Jones Entertains.

Miss Alice Jones very charmingly entertained the members of the B. S. & E. T. society and their gentlemen friends at her home, north of Alexandria, it being the eighteenth anniversary of her birth. The evening was spent in playing games, after which an elegant three-course supper was served. The color scheme employed was pink and green, the initials of the society being arranged in the center of the table. The toastmaster of the evening was V. D. Pace, of Alexandria. Those who enjoyed Miss Jones' hospitality were the Misses Minnie and Jennie Hammond, Minnie Tyler, Clara Wells, Eva Cash and Grace Jones, Messrs. Maurice Pace, J. E. Lloyd, Lawrence Irwin, Ernest Henthorn, Roy Wells, Louis Cuth and Arthur Helsen. The out-of-town guests were the Misses Ethel Wood and Harrington, of Newark.

Harry D. Baker, Lawyer.

As stated in yesterday's Advocate, among the applicants for admission to the bar who successfully passed the state bar examination, held in Columbus, was Mr. Harry D. Baker, of this city. Mr. Baker is a son of Mr. L. D. Baker, of North Fifth street, and is one of the best young men of the city. He spent two years at Denison university, Granville, when he discontinued his studies for one year to assist his father on the farm. Three years ago he entered the law department of the Ohio State university and at the recent examination was among the best in the class. He is a member of the O. S. U. chapter of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity and his many friends in Newark and Granville were glad to learn of his success in passing the rigid examination now required of all applicants for admission to the bar.

Tamest Convention in Country's History.

The Republican National Convention at Chicago proves to be the tamest and most perfunctory affair of the kind ever held by one of the leading parties in all the country's history. The nomination of Senator Fairbanks was so clearly a preliminary agreement that it practically eliminated all the interest that would have attended a contest.

The selection was one not calculated to arouse any genuine enthusiasm in the convention or among the people. It was admittedly made simply because the man in the White House deemed it necessary to have the candidate from Indiana. There was absolutely no enthusiasm for him among the Republicans of other States; there is nothing about the man or his record calculated to add strength to the ticket outside of Indiana and very little in it.

The platform was adopted without any contest either in committee or in the convention. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, admits he wrote every line of it, which means that as Roosevelt's chum, he wrote just what the man in the White House dictated.

It is not strange, therefore, that with such a situation the practical politicians among the delegates were all disgusted with the entire proceedings and made a loud demand to cut matters short and get through as soon as possible.

In a word, everything was cut and dried in advance, and the proceedings of the convention and of the National Committee are simply the will of the man in the White House.

Tariff and Immigration.

In pointing out that this country last year received 939,830 immigrants and the Dominion of Canada but 128,000, the Chicago Tribune remarks: "This country led in quantity of immigration, but how as to quality? Of its immigrants 655,000 came from Eastern and Southern Europe. Of the new settlers in the Dominion 80 per cent came from Great Britain, the United States, Germany, France, Belgium, and the Scandinavian countries. Most of them were able-bodied young men and women. Many, especially those from the United States, were well-to-do at home, and brought capital as well as strong arms with them. These are the kind of people who are taking up the fertile wheat lands of the Canadian northwest. They are infinitely superior to that refuse and scum of some portions of Europe which drifts to this country and speedily finds homes in tenements, poor-houses, insane asylums and jails. The Canadian newcomers add to the wealth of that country. Too many of the immigrants to this country are a burden upon its wealth."

This is so true that the labor unions of the country are beginning to show a restlessness that bodes ill for the tariff, for, as Prof. John R. Commons says of them, "Of what use is the tariff against the product of cheap foreign labor going to be to you if there is to be free entry of the cheap foreign laborers themselves?"

This is one of the questions that is to be solved by proper legislation. A stringent immigration measure should be passed by Congress for the proper protection of the American workingman. Such a law would do more for the laboring people than all the McKinley and Dingley tariff bills that were ever framed.

The report of the American war correspondent who spent several days as a prisoner in Port Arthur, and who was sent out of that place only a few days ago, indicates that the task of the Japanese in reducing it will be a most serious one. The fortress is said to be well provisioned, and to have a larger garrison than has been reported, while the fortifications have recently been greatly strengthened. This being the case, the necessity for the Japanese making thorough preparations before seriously attempting its reduction becomes more manifest. If things are as reported, the undertaking may be a matter of months instead of weeks.

The investigation of the General Slocum disaster has already produced evidence to the effect that there was no fire drill, that the hose was defective and burst, that the life preservers were largely useless, that the boats were not lowered, that the crew was too small and the first mate had no license from the inspectors. When the evidence is all in, this list of deficiencies will probably be considerably increased. It can hardly be possible that the General Slocum was the only boat in such a situation, and the authorities while investigating the cause of the disaster to it should bestir themselves everywhere to see that a repetition of it in some other quarter does not occur.

DOWNWARD COURSE

Fast Being Realized by Newark People.

A little backache at first. Daily increasing till the back is lame and weak. Urinary disorders quickly follow. Diabetes and finally Bright's disease. This is the downward course of kidney ills. Don't take this course. Follow the advice of a Newark citizen: Mrs. M. W. Jarvis, No. 105 North Fifth street says: "When I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Crayton's drug store I had been sick for some time, in fact I could not do anything I was feeling so poorly. I had a severe pain in my back and was terribly weak. I had been taking treatment first one thing and then another, but I felt no better. My attention was drawn to a reading notice in our local paper about Doan's Kidney Pills. Bad backs like mine had been cured, could mine be also? I decided to try them. They did for me what other medicines failed to do. They gently aided the kidneys and the pain in my back over these organs left me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name — Doan's — and take no other.

HOTEL IN "THE WILDERNESS."

The Inside Inn, Wholly Within the World's Fair Grounds, Affords an Ideal Meeting Place.

Accommodations at Modest Rates.

The broad and splendidly shaded verandas and the mammoth and well ventilated rotunda of the Inside Inn, the only hotel within the World's Fair grounds at St. Louis, is an ideal meeting place for friends when they visit the Fair.

This hostelry, which covers an area of 400 by 300 feet, is three stories high and contains 2,257 rooms. Immense wide porches surround the great structure, and as the building was erected in the very heart of what was "The Wilderness", one of the most delightful spots of Forest Park, the giant oaks furnish at all times a grateful shade. Rustic benches, settees, and chairs are generously placed on the porches, and while one waits for his friends he may enjoy each moment in watching the passing throng, and in admiring the architecture of the many handsome structures reared by the states of the union on adjacent sites.

The Inn is in the southeast corner of the World's Fair ground, near one of the main entrances, and of easy access. A short walk will take the guest to any point in the "main picture" of the Exposition. If he desires to reach the Athletic grounds, the stadium, the six-acre rose garden, the 10-acre Philippines exhibit or any other of the thousand and one features he may board the intramural railway, which passes the door and for one fare may be landed at the desired place in a jiffy.

Should the occasion require that he go down town he may board any street car that passes the hotel on the south, and on payment of one fare he may reach any point in St. Louis.

One great advantage of being a guest at the Inside Inn is that if one during the heat of the day should become weary, he may retire to his room take a refreshing bath, indulge in a siesta, and later resume his sight-seeing with renewed energy and more capable of enjoying it, because of the brief rest.

The rates governing the Inside Inn are reasonable and were fixed by the Exposition management. Rates on the European plan range from $1.50 to $5.00 per day, admission to the Exposition included. Breakfast and luncheons are served in a cafe seating 2,500 persons for 50 cents, while the evening dinner is served for 75 cents.

SUIT CASES, Portmanteaus, TELESCOPES And all kinds of Traveling Bags

If You Are Going
To St. Louis or elsewhere for your vacation, you will need a trunk. Might as well have a good trunk—you will need it. A poor trunk has no more show in a crowd of trunks than a delicate, weakly person has in a riot or panic.

If you would have protection for your clothes, buy a good trunk—which does not necessarily mean a high priced trunk, but a trunk properly constructed.

We handle the best trunks made. People who bought a trunk of us in former times won't need one this year, but there are thousands who do need a new one—one that will last for many years.

GOOD TRUNKS.....$3.00 to $30.00
SUIT CASES.....$1.25 to $15.00 each

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON
CURED TO STAY CURED.

If your blood has been poisoned with any hereditary or acquired disease you are never safe until the virus is completely out of your system. Do not trust to family doctors, patent medicines, blood purifiers, mercury and iodine etc. Trust only what you can see through their eyes, feel with your hands, taste with your tongue, and smell with your nose. I CAN CURE YOU.

MY IMPROVED METHOD OF TREATMENT
is the result of many years of experience in the cure of thousands of cases of Blood Poison. It is a full cure in 30, 60 or 90 days, and your money is under a legal guarantee. My charges are no more than you would willingly pay for valuable services. Here is one of many thousands of cures for a grateful patient.

THE STORY OF A WONDERFUL CURE:
DR. J. M. KERR.—I had been suffering for over six years with Contagious Blood Poisoning, and had become thoroughly discouraged, having received no relief from a number of other physicians who had treated me. Seeing your advertisement I at once decided to try you. At that time my body was a mass of ulcers, my limbs swollen to twice their normal size, and I was unable to walk without assistance. That was the 8th of April, 1903, and now on the 27th of June, less than three months, my ulcers have all disappeared, the swelling is gone, and I am on the road to a permanent cure. Words cannot express my thanks to you, and I would earnestly advise any one who is suffering from a like disease to avail himself of your services. Yours very gratefully,
E. W. RUSSELL, 1545 River St., Detroit, Mich.

THE RAILWAYS

SEVERAL CONVENTIONS HELD THIS MONTH.

J. M. Allen Here—Engineer Cramer Dead—Two Railroad Boys Join Benedicts—Local Pickups.

Many railroad conventions are scheduled for this month, including the following: Train Dispatchers' Association of America at St. Louis, June 21; Master Car Builders' association at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., June 22; National Association of Railway Agents, St. Louis, June 21; American Railway Master Mechanics' association, Saratoga Springs, June 27, and Association of American Railway Accounting Officers, in the same city, June 29.

Engineer Cramer Dead.

J. D. Cramer, a Baltimore and Ohio railroad engineer for many years, died Monday at his home in Norwalk. He was 39 years of age and is survived by a widow and two children. The body was taken to Fredericktown Wednesday for burial. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers had charge of the obsequies.

Railroad Boys Join Benedicts.

Two of the popular railroad boys of local lines are joining the ranks of the Benedicts. Frank R. Harvey, the accommodating brakeman of B. & O. trains Nos. 105 and 104, between Pittsburg and Newark, O., was united in marriage yesterday with Miss Emma Dennison, of Claysville, Pa. The ceremony was performed at Washington, Pa. The bridesmaid was Miss Anna Dennison, a sister of the bride, and the best man was Charles F. Brill, the well-known brakeman of the B. & O. night express. After a sojourn in the West and a visit to the World's Fair, the couple will reside in Hazelwood. The other railroad man who was beguiled by Cupid was J. W. Kernahan, who is connected with the office of Superintendent R. E. McCarty, of the Pan Handle, as a clerk. Mr. Kernahan slipped out to Columbus last night, presumably on a trip to his former home in that city. One of his friends gave the real story of his trip away by saying that he will today take unto himself a helpmeet in the person of a charming Columbus damsel. After a trip to Niagara Falls and other Northern points of interest, Mr. and Mrs. Kernahan will reside at Crafston.—Fittsburg Post.

J. M. Allen in the City.

J. M. Allen, formerly traveling auditor for the Baltimore and Ohio, with headquarters in this city, is in the city visiting his many friends at the local railroad offices and making farewell calls on the officials. Mr. Allen is making arrangements for removing to Grafton, his future home. It is understood that Mr. Allen will be assistant and private secretary to Mr. Tompkins, a millionaire lumber dealer of Grafton.

Local Pickups.

Brakeman W. H. Anderson, who has been off duty for a few days, has been marked up for service.

Conductor Andy Straw has been given a few days' absence.

Fred Rogers, a helper employed at the shops, is quite sick at his home in Granville.

T. T. Nichols, who has been sick at his home on Baltimore street for some days, is still unable for work.

George W. Spencer, formerly chief dispatcher for the B. & O. here, is now located at Baltimore, Md., with the B. & O.

Construction work on the new railroad bridge at Parkersburg will be begun shortly. The engineers are on the ground and the workmen are arriving. About 125 men will be employed on the structure. O. & L. K. traffic will be interfered with but little. One pier will be removed and an 800 foot cantilever span substituted for the two present spans in order to conform to the navigation requirements.

Conductor J. R. Ellis, who has been quite sick at his home on Pauskala street for some days, is reported as being considerably improved at his writing.

Conductor Sidle is laying off for a few trips.

Brakeman H. Carlyle has been given a short leave of absence.

E. L. Herschline, a helper in the shops, who had the misfortune to injure one of his fingers very badly some days ago, is rapidly recovering from his injury and will soon be able for work.

B. & O. Conductor Lon Merrill, of Bellaire, on the run between Bellaire and Barnesville, is visiting friends in the city this week.

B. & O. Fireman N. A. Morahan and E. J. Barnett are off duty for a few days.

Baltimore and Ohio Passenger Agent F. P. Copper is in the city today.

B. & O. Building Inspector C. Maderia, of Grafton, was in the city on Tuesday.

Owen McKenna, one of the oldest employees of the Baltimore and Ohio shops, laid off Tuesday to transact business.

Worst of All Experiences.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by Hall's drug store.

MRS. ROBERT OSBORN.

Mrs. Osborn, who is seeking a divorce, attracted much attention two years ago by establishing "Mrs. Osborn's Parlor," a theater designed for the Four Hundred of New York. The experiment was a failure, and since then Mrs. Osborn has been endeavoring to show New York women how to dress properly.

NEW ADDITION

SPLENDID BUILDING LOTS PUT ON THE MARKET.

Newark Real Estate and Improvement Company Has for Sale Limited Number of Choice Lots.

Idlewild addition is now open. We have decided to place on sale a limited number of these choice lots, which are but a few steps from the car line and adjacent to the West End factories.

These lots are so desirable and price and terms are so attractive that it will pay you to call at No. 14 North Park Place and see some member of The Newark Real Estate and Improvement Company. Office open evenings.

PREFERRED STOCK

In the Newark Telephone Company Is Held By Many Well-Known Newark and Licking Co. People —A Small Amount Now Offered.

The Newark Independent Telephone Company's exchange continues to grow at a rapid rate—the present number of subscribers being 1623 with an increase in number daily.

To provide for this remarkable growth, the company has placed an additional limited amount of its six per cent non-taxable preferred stock on the market at par.

About 75 of the most conservative and best business men of Newark are holders of the common and preferred stock of the company. Prospective purchasers are given every opportunity to investigate the business to inspect the plant and to see how this big and constantly growing business is conducted.

The company pays a 3 per cent dividend to stockholders of record July 1 on that date. If you invest now you will draw the full semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent on January 1, 1905.

The investment is safe and the returns are good. For further particulars call at the company's office, 38 1-2 North Third street.

NATURE SPARES

The Stricken Rose From Grief.
What a fortunate provision of nature it is, that deprives the rose of mental suffering, for how poignant would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming glory, that a canker fed at its heart, and that its beauty and fragrance were doomed forever. Nature always spares the suffering; she is a veritable store-house of pleasing rewards, for those who seek her aid. In the years gone by falling hair and grayness have cast a gloom over the lives of thousands of young women, but thanks to the investigations of scientists the true cause of hair destruction is now known to be a germ or parasite that burrows into the hair follicle. Newbro's Hairdye absolutely destroys this germ, thus permitting the hair to grow as nature intended. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpelde Co., Detroit, Mich. C. The New Way to Health

With the discovery of VITONA, the "New Way to Health," there is really no longer any excuse for remaining sick. This remedy is a natural product of the blood, which is the only scientific way to prevent and cure disease. If you feel that your health is in the slightest degree impaired, the Liver, Kidneys and Stomach are the organs most likely to be affected. Nature has her own way of warning us of the approach of disease. Here are a few of the danger signals:

Vacation Days

Why are vacation days necessary?

Because after a year's struggle you are weak, run down, lacking appetite, ambition and energy. Your brain cells refuse to work. You must give Nature a chance to repair.

Do you think Nature can in two weeks repair a year's steady drain? Suppose you help Nature. Blood is what you need. With rich, red blood in your veins you live, not merely exist.

When you get a tonic that strengthens the nerves, tones the stomach, regulates the bowels and prepares the whole system for its greatest effort, with rich, red blood to draw on for vitality, you can know the joy of living.

Doctors and the Merchants to Meet in a Gigantic Struggle Here Friday Afternoon.

In the baseball game between the doctors and merchants at the Y. M. C. A. grounds Friday afternoon, all doubt will be wiped away as to which is the better team. Both teams have the strongest lineup possible, and the plays will no doubt be features of the game. For the doctors, Palmer assures us that "one-handed catches and double put-outs, unassisted," are a regular thing with him now. Johnson and Elliott both say that home runs and three-baggers may be expected every time they come to the bat. The game will be called at 3:30 p. m. Admission 10 cents ladies free.

Oil, Water and Long Life.

According to a Californian, people who would preserve undiminished spryness and at the same time attain length of days have only to drink distilled water and rub olive oil on the joints, besides taking proper exercise.

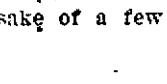

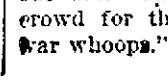

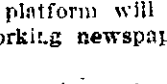

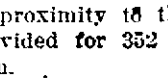

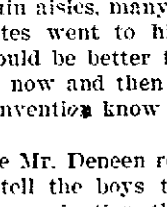

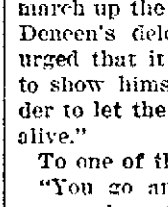

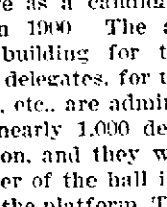

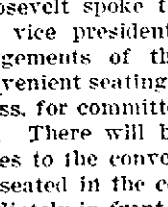

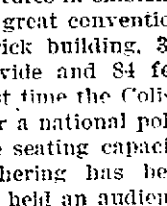

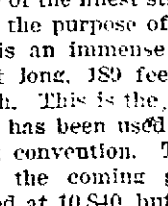

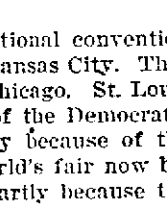

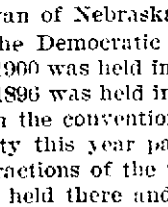

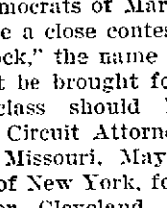

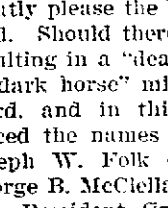

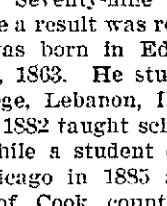

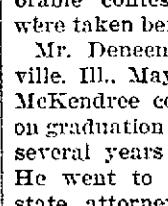

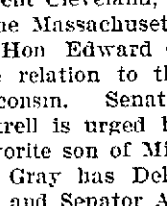

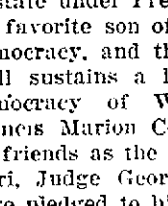

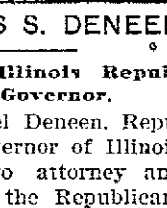

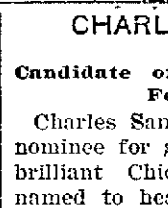

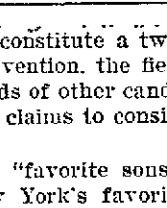

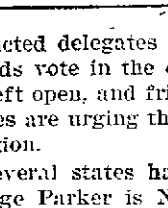

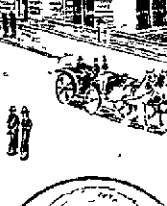

"Ordinary water," he says, "contains mineral substances and sediment which find their way to the joints. Thus we find men and women troubled with rheumatism. Their joints prematurely ossify, and old age comes on. The method which I have put into practice has proved its efficiency in warding off old age. There is no reason why any one should not live to be a century old and enjoy his declining years if he will simply use pure olive oil and drink only distilled water."

DEMOCRATS TO MEET

NATIONAL CONVENTION CONVENES IN ST. LOUIS ON JULY 6.

Alton B. Parker and William T. Hearst the Leading Candidates For the Presidential Nomination—Favorite Sons and Dark Horses.

WHO will be the standard bearers of the Democracy in the coming national campaign? This question will be answered by the Democratic national convention, which begins its labors in the new Coliseum, St. Louis, on July 6. Four years ago it was well understood before the Democratic convention assembled that the nominee for president would be the Hon. William Jennings Bryan. This year no such certainty as to the head of the ticket exists. The two men who may be looked upon as the leading candidates are Judge Alton B. Parker and Representative William T. Hearst of New York. The delegates of New York state were instructed to vote for Judge Parker's nomination for the presidency, and their ballots will be cast for him under the unit rule. As several other important states have instructed their delegates for Judge Parker, he is expected to present the greatest numerical strength on the opening of the convention. Mr. Hearst, although he did not secure the endorsement of his own state, has the support of quite a number of instructed delegations, principally from western states; in a sense the favorite son of California, his native state, and is regarded as standing next to Judge Parker in numerical strength. There are 994 delegates to the convention, and a two-thirds vote is required to nominate. As neither of the leading candidates possesses a sufficient number of in-

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Kate Claxton is again reviving "The Two Orphans." Originally produced in 1875 at the Union theater, New York, this play has outlived all of the romantic melodramas.

One of the prettiest pieces of artistic work Mrs. Fiske has ever done is the little, tired flower girl of the slums in Mrs. Oscar Beringer's one act play, "A Bit of Old Chelsea."

The Olympic theater, Chicago, has been leased again for a term of years by its present managers and will be entirely remodeled and reopened as a vaudeville theater Aug. 15.

Unless the unexpected happens Mme. Sarah Bernhardt will make a tour of America next fall under the management of Frank McKee. She has signed a contract to this effect.

Beebohm Tree recently opened in London a "school of dramatic art," which, in connection with his theater, is expected to raise the standard of theatrical performances in all England.

A new musical conceit by Cole and Johnson, entitled "The Evolution of Ragtime," is one of the features of "A Little of Everything" at the Aerial Gardens, New Amsterdam theater, New York.

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

The annual returns of the British registrar general show a steady increase of mortality from anaesthesia since 1893.

An official connected with the London zoo has been convicted of selling to a sausage maker horse meat that was condemned as not being good enough for the animals under his care.

The present custom in England of brides carrying prayer books instead of bouquets has caused a boom in the prayer book trade. The bindings have to be white—morocco, calf, ivory, silver or mother of pearl.

The climate and soil of Ireland having been declared suitable for sugar beets, 3,000 acres near Cork are to be planted with these tubers, and it is expected that ere long the United Kingdom will be able to grow all its sugar.

Lord Kitchener's task in India is to make India a military power as independent as possible of "home" resources. Arms and ammunition factories, stud farms, military colleges and an Indian volunteer force are parts of the plan.

SHORT STORIES.

The stage which has run for sixty years between West Gosben and Cornwall, Conn., has just been discontinued.

Seafaring men say the gulf stream has increased its speed and incoming ships are several hours ahead of schedule time. Those bound south are delayed.

Treasure hunting has become the principal occupation of the islanders of Martinique. They dig day and night among the ruins caused by the eruptions of Mont Pelee for gold and other valuables.

The famous Snow telescope is to be moved from Williams Bay, Wis., to the summit of Mount Wilson, near Pasadena, Cal., where it will be in charge of Professor G. E. Hale, director of the Yerkes observatory.

The training school in courtship, which is one of the institutions in the Salvation Army, has no counterpart in any other organization in the world. All the courting is done in public—that is to say, in the presence of other members of the army. Strangely enough, the girls appear to like these extraordinary rules.

HORSES AND HORSEMEN.

Major Delmar, 159th, is reported in excellent condition.

George Spear is going very slow with Billy Buch, 2:07 1/4, at Louisville.

Kirkwood, Jr., 2:11 1/4, recently worked a quarter in 32 seconds at Cleveland.

Lord Derby, 2:05 1/4, is joggling at Louisville, but so far has done no fast work.

There is a promising yearling, sister of Sir Albert S., 2:03 1/4, in California, called May Logan.

Agnes Le May, 2:13 1/4, is reported to have paced a quarter in 29 3/4 seconds in her work at Cleveland.

It is said that since True Chimes, 2:12 1/4, was shifted to the pace he has stepped an eighth below 15 seconds.

The pacing stallion Sidney Pointer, 2:07 1/4, was so severely injured by a kick from another horse recently that there is some doubt about his complete recovery.

George E. Lattimer of Buffalo has purchased the famous pony pacing station Charley Hayt, 2:06 1/4, by Allerton, 2:05 1/4, from Frank B. Williams, Corning, N. Y.

GERMAN GLEANINGS.

Measures are being taken by the German government to exploit the now dormant water powers of the country on a large scale.

Taxes are paid on 20,000 dogs in Berlin. In addition to these there are 2,163 watchdogs, 221 belonging to blind and deaf people, 2,651 used for drawing small carts and 118 belonging to the gaiser.

The German police have begun a systematic campaign against quacks and quack medicines. They estimate that in ten years the population has increased 38 per cent, regular medical men 70 per cent and quacks 1,567 per cent.

There are at present in Germany 29,200 doctors, twice as many as there were in 1876. In Berlin 46 per cent of all physicians have a taxable income below $714, whereas in the German legal profession 80 per cent have an income of over $2,300.

ROSES Versus DAISIES

By MARAVENE KENNEDY

Copyright, 1904, by M. E. Wilson

The round faced daisies, not the boy's pleading eyes, held her gaze, yet she smiled wistfully into the eager little face as she gave him the coveted dime. She smiled whimsically as she took her seat in a crowded car. She held the daisies a moment against the cushion roses on her breast, then reread Walter Antler's note:

Margaret, Dear—It's hard lines that I can't see you off, but Harding's out on important business, and I can't desert the ship. Shall be with you in spirit as are my roses in reality. Write me at once on your arrival. I shall be up soon for my answer. Goodbye, dearest. My own dearest, God grant, some day. Yours only, WALTER.

She leaned her fair face to the roses and breathed deeply. It was so sweet to know that she was all in all to the winning, successful man. Her eyes fell to the daisies, and with a sudden suffocation she opened the window.

"Is it too much air for you?" she asked courteously of the plain, middle aged woman beside her.

The woman laughed pleasantly. "There can't be too much air for me. I've been to the city for two weeks, and I'm downright hungry for a whiff of fresh air. I had a good time, I guess. Leastways I did what folks there call havin' a good time. But I've had all I ever want. Mercerville's good enough for me after this."

The girl's face grew serious. It was the charm of the city that had taken her away from her father and mother—and Jack. For two years the city had held her, and till just the month before she had thought she loved it too well to leave for even a few weeks' vacation. Then had come a longing, a desperate heart sickness, for green fields, peaceful nights and the fragrant, cooling of the hills. She would grow tired of them in a few weeks, she thought wearily. She would long then just as earnestly for the brilliantly lighted restaurants, the Hungarian music, the sparkle and life of the gay crowds about her. She would want the theaters, the concerts, the streets pulsing with humanity.

Jack met her at the train. He was the same Jack she had left—tall, loosely built, unconscious of himself. His pleasant face reflected his clean, honest life, and his easy going gait and ready made clothes spoke the custom of the town. She looked at him tranquilly. No, it was not Jack that had drawn her here. It was her father or her mother. How sweet to have mother or father here. It was to feel the soft kiss on her cheek after the heart hungry mother thought her little ewe lamb fast asleep. How good, too, to hear father call her Daisy and little one more.

And she was glad to see Jack. He came next evening and told her in his soft, slow voice all the news of the place and—once more—how dearly he loved her.

"Do you, Jack?" she asked wistfully. "Could I mean more to you than this?" She reached out her arms caressingly toward the stretch of green and dewy fragrant flowers lying so peacefully beneath the soft moonlight. "Could you be happy with me on a hot, paved street, with no trees nor fields of flowers and where the air was sick?" She laughed tremulously. "You can't understand, of course, but I came home just for the smell of the grass, the stillness, the pure, sweet air!"

His big, warm hand clasped her cold little fingers lovingly.

"I do understand," he said gently. "I went to the city once, was there almost a year, but I had to come back. I was doing well too. I never told you about it. It seemed rather womanish for a big hulking man to hanker for green fields and flowers."

She moved nearer to him.

"There's a man there," she said softly, "that—that I think I love. He made it very pleasant for me, and he's clever and well to do. I thought a few weeks here would satisfy me, but I know now it won't. I must have the great big open—I can't be shut in. Shall I write him 'No'?" Almost to herself she breathed the question agitatedly under her breath.

"Not if you truly love him, Daisy," he said generously. "But I do want you, dear, and I'd like my chance along with him. Give me two weeks, then send for him and talk things over and decide."

The two weeks were blissful ones for both, but Margaret could not determine how great a share of the joy giving was Jack's. They trudged contentedly along the dusty roads together, picked berries, stole apples and waded streams. They jogged gayly behind old Jack, Jack's raw boned delivery horse, and were as satisfied as though he were a thoroughbred.

Then she sent for Walter Antler and waited in strange indecision for him to come. She wrote him frankly of her desire for the country, her uncertainty as to her feelings for him and told him about Jack.

"I don't think I understand," he said uncertainly, standing tall and immaculate beside Margaret the evening of his arrival. His handsome, keen eyes smiled good humoredly into the girl's perturbed face. "You say if I will live in the country you will consider my proposal. U-h-m! I would lose my mind, dearest. This place is very sweet and pretty, yes, but two days of it would drive me to drink." He turned to her earnestly. "The city will seem different with a house of your own and plenty of servants and theaters and concerts. Inside of a year you'll say the city's the only place on earth to live. Really, my darling, you can't mean this talk about the country. It's rank nonsense."

Just then Jack swung lightly out of his buggy and ran up the walk. He did not know Antler had come. The two men eyed each other for a moment tensely. Then Margaret introduced them.

She looked full into Jack's tanned, earnest face, then turned slowly to Antler's clean cut, virile features. The men breathed deeply. Each knew that the woman he loved was deciding for or against him. Margaret herself did not realize what she was doing. She broke the rasping silence with a low:

"I can't go driving this evening, Jack. Come tomorrow evening. I'll go then."

"You've decided against me," Antler said, a strange lump in his throat, as Jack drove away. "You—you love—him?"

"Yes," she answered gently. "He loves the life I do. You and I are so far apart on things. It's the outwardness of each other you and I love. I think, and with Jack it's—it's something that comes from within. I thought till you came if you would live in the country I would rather live my life with you than Jack, but—"

"You would not—even then?" he asked eagerly. She was very lovely, and he thought he loved her enough for the sacrifice. She smiled in wondrous sympathy, for had she not measured love that way herself?

"I love him better for all time," she said softly. "He and I can be friends and comrades as well as husband and wife, and that's the only way to be happy ever after."

Meissonier as a Portrait Painter.

Meissonier admitted that he would not have made a good portraitist by profession, for with few exceptions he had succeeded only with sitters whom he liked and knew well. He was not satisfied with painting things as he saw them; he had to understand how they came to have such or such an appearance. Though he claimed to remember every drawing that he had ever made, he also claimed that he did not reduce his knowledge to general formulae. "Before nature. I know nothing in advance"—not even, it appears, what size he was going to make his picture or how much he was going to include in it. This is the reason that many of his drawings and some of his paintings have been extended in one direction or another by bands of paper or canvas glued on. Meissonier had a strong dramatic imagination and an uncommon sense of harmony, yet they were both occasionally smothered by this devotion to literal fact.

Carried Samples.

During a meeting of the Louisville presbytery a delegate told this story of pioneer days and vouched for its accuracy: One of the circuit riders in my part of the state was extremely fond of pepper sauce, and as he could seldom find any strong enough at places where he stopped he always carried a bottle with him. He happened to be at a hotel one night, though he usually stopped at the home of a friend. A man sat across the table from him and, seeing the sauce, asked if the minister would share it with him. The request was granted, and the stranger poured out a liberal allowance of the sauce into his soup. At the first swallow he made a wry face and blurted out, "Minister, do you preach hades?" "Yes, brother," was the reply. "Why do you ask?" "Because you are the first preacher I ever saw who carried samples," was the answer.

The Legend of Killarney.

Like many other lakes, those of Killarney have legendary origin—an enchanted fountain, the spring head of which, if left undisturbed at certain times, would inundate the district. One of these legends we give.

It throws the responsibility of the awful event on a fair young peasant girl, who was wont to meet her lover—a stranger ignorant of the mystic spell—by the fountain side. One night they were lulled to sleep by the music of its flow. At daybreak the girl awoke, screaming, "The well, the well!" It was then too late. The water was rushing forth and overtook them as they ran. They were drowned and involved in their fate the inhabitants of the district.

The people still believe that the submerged houses and their inhabitants live beneath and are at times visible to those who stray along the water side.

Their Way In Russia

(Copyright, 1904, by C. B. Lewis.)

I landed in Russia twenty years ago on strictly lawful business—to look for the heirs to some property in the western part of the United States, and my information led me direct to the city of Narva. Before I had been in the place two hours the chief of police called and let me know that I was considered "suspicious."

He told me that Peter Bogoff, whose heirs I was seeking, had been strongly suspected of nihilism before he died, and that a warrant would have been served had he lived a day longer. This was as good as telling me that I would get into trouble if I prosecuted any inquiries, but I foolishly determined to beard the lion in his den.

Thinking I might better carry on the business from St. Petersburg, I departed for that city after a few days and at once called upon a lawyer. He was sharp enough to realize that I would not have taken the long journey unless the property was of considerable value, and without any beating around the bush he told me that he would find the heirs and put the matter through for the sum of $5,000. This was rank robbery, and I refused to submit to it, and as a result soon discovered that no lawyer would have anything to do with the case at all.

Not only that, but I was soon summoned to the office of the chief of police. He was very polite, but at the same time it was easy to read his hypocrisy. He first secured possession of my passport, which, he claimed, needed some slight amendment, and then began to question me. He kept me on the rack for three long hours and then had the impudence to offer me his hand as I departed.

I went straight from his office to that of a private detective agency to set inquiries on foot. The superintendent entered into the matter with considerable earnestness and agreed to dispatch a man to Narva that evening to secure the wished for information.

I returned to the hotel feeling rather jubilant at outwitting the police, but this state of feeling did not last long. Within an hour the superintendent of the agency called to inform me that he must drop the case, turning me off with the excuse that he was too busy to attend to it.

He had scarcely departed before the proprietor of the hotel came to my room and politely asked me to vacate it. He would not admit that it was the work of the police, but I had no trouble in coming to that conclusion.

I finally got rooms in a boarding house after being refused at every other hotel, and for a week the police let me alone. I had made the long journey to find the heirs of Bogoff and close a deal for the land. I had not been provided with money to bribe any one, and I must either defy the police and work up the case single handed or return and report a failure.

Being firmly convinced that Mrs. Bogoff was in Narva, I secretly left the capital for that town one night. Securing rooms in a boarding house after my arrival and disguising my personal appearance to a considerable extent, I prosecuted my inquiries under one excuse and another until I at length discovered the woman. She was living in her own house and in poor circumstances and was rejoiced at the prospects of selling the land.

I now had to give my case away by calling on a notary to make out the papers, and in less than half a day the police were at my heels again. They not only warned every notary at Narva, but the widow was obliged to flee the city and go into hiding.

Things might have stopped there had I been a cool and pliant man. When I found the police bounding me again I lost my temper and gave the chief my candid opinion of things in general and of his own conduct in particular. As a natural sequence I was promptly arrested, though just what the technical charge was I never learned.

I was taken to jail and confined in a cell with a man waiting trial for robbery. He seemed to be a thorough villain, but as he could not speak a word of English nor I a word of Russian we hit it off by letting each other severely alone. As soon as incarcerated I asked to communicate with the American minister, but was refused.

On the third day the chief of police sent for me and asked me if I would leave Russia if given my liberty. I replied in the negative and was returned to prison. My threats that the matter would be thoroughly sifted by our representative only made him smile, and he quietly informed me that he would keep me in prison for the rest of my life if I did not agree to his terms.

On the seventh day he sent for me again. I had now changed my mind, realizing that I could even be sent on to Siberia if the police so desired and that there was no longer the slightest hope of accomplishing my errand. I therefore answered him that I was ready and willing to leave the czar's dominions at a moment's notice, and an hour later, in charge of four police officers, I was on my way to a steamer leaving port that night.

I was locked in a stateroom, forbidden to hold communication with any one and was not released from duress until after twenty-four hours. I found people of all nationalities on the boat, but got no sympathy from any of them. On the contrary, I was called an idiot for my conduct, and all agreed that I might have been packed off to Siberia without any one but the police being the wiser.

For the Horse Stolen From Rutledge Livery Stable—Was in Columbus Saturday.

Ex-Marshall of Newark, Joseph Griffith and J. W. Rutledge were in Columbus on Wednesday in search of the horse that had been stolen from Mr. Rutledge a few days ago. They learned that the person who had stolen the horse was in Columbus on Saturday night, and endeavored to trade the stolen horse and buggy. It was also learned that the fellow was in Zanesville all day Sunday. On Monday he was seen eleven miles south of Zanesville, and on Tuesday he stopped at a livery barn in McArthur, and inquired the way to Hamlin Junction. The officers are hot on the trail and the indications are that the thief will soon be captured.

COMPLIMENT

Paid The Advocate by Mr. J. M. Maylone—Compares Its Telegraph Service With Other Papers.

Mr. J. M. Maylone is now secretary and treasurer of the American Drying Machinery company, manufacturers of Twentieth century dryers, carbonizers, ventilating fans, and so forth, located at Westmoreland and Nineteenth streets, Philadelphia.

The Advocate has just received a letter from Mr. Maylone which in part reads as follows:

"I do not think that I appreciated the Advocate when I was in Newark. But now, by comparison, I see that it is quite a paper and thought I ought to tell you so. In Monday's paper your account of the New York steamer horror was much fuller than that of the Philadelphia papers of the same date. Indeed each issue of your paper has more telegraphic news than any of the papers here. * * * The papers here are largely filled with city news and that of surrounding towns in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. The Advocate's telegrams cover the country much better. I congratulate you."

THE A. A. Griggs COMPANY

WEDDING

AT HOME OF CHARLES SMUCKER WEDNESDAY EVENING.

When Miss Helen Elizabeth Smucker Became the Bride of Mr. Weston, Was a Beautiful Ceremony.

On Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smucker on Hudson avenue occurred one of the most fashionable society weddings of the season, when Miss Helen Elizabeth Smucker became the wife of Mr. Leon Addison Weston, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. T. A. Cosgrove, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, in the presence of about a hundred invited guests.

The house was decorated with an elaborate profusion of palms, daisies, syringas and other beautiful floral blooms. In the front parlor, where the ceremony was performed, there had been a floral canopy constructed, surmounted by a wedding bell of white daisies, while festoons of the same flowers were carried from the chandelier in the center to the front windows of the room.

Almost on the stroke of eight the nuptial march from Lohengrin was begun on the piano, Miss Kathryn Simonds officiating at the instrument. The bridal party made their appearance at the rear of the back parlor, led by Messrs. A. Edward King and Mr. Harry Davis as ribbon-bearers, who formed an aisle through the assemblage to the front room, where the officiating clergyman stood in company with the groom and his best man, Mr. Edgar Smith, of Boston.

First in the procession came Miss Atta Beecher as maid of honor, dressed in pure white organdie and carrying a large spray of asparagus vine. She was followed by Miss Violet Kettlewell, of Baltimore, Md., dressed also in white, and then came the bride on the arm of her father. She was radiant in a beautiful lace robe over taffeta, with veil, and carried a large bridal bouquet of white roses.

An expectant hush fell upon the guests as the voice of the minister was heard beginning the words of the Presbyterian nuptial ceremony, stately in its simplicity, solemn in its significance. The fateful words were soon spoken which joined the two lives, and those present thronged forward to extend congratulations on the happy couple.

A wedding supper was served which was elaborate in preparation and perfect in its service. At a large round table sat the bridal party. This table bore a huge center bouquet of white carnations, while candles with white shades were used for decoration as well as lighting. With Mr. and Mrs. Weston sat Misses Atta Beecher, Violet Kettlewell, Jennie Irwin, Kathryn Simonds, Mame Smucker, Messrs. A. Edward King, Edward C. Miller, Ned Smucker, Harry Davis and Mr. Smith.

At the bride's second table, after the immediate bridal party was served, sat Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Knauss, Dr. and Mrs. Judson T. Lewis, Misses Mary Baldwin and Ida Moore, Messrs. Joe Miller and Will Foos.

Immediately after the wedding supper the bride was blindfolded and gave away her bouquet, which fell to Miss Kathryn Simonds. During the entire evening Daly's orchestra rendered an exhaustive musical program.

Mr. and Mrs. Weston will take an extended wedding trip to Vermont and the East before returning to Newark.

The out-of-town guests were: Miss Violet Kettlewell, of Baltimore; Miss Jennie Irwin, of Connellsville, Pa.; Miss Patterson and Miss Florence Patterson, of Mt. Vernon; Mrs. Bartholomew and Mrs. L. Watt, of Columbus; Mrs. S. Alsford, of Mt. Vernon, Miss George, of Springfield, Ill., and Mr. Ed C. Miller, of Wheeling, W. Va.

Mr. Weston, who has won so fair a bride and worthy helpmate, is a native of New England, and is a mechanical and electrical engineer, who has been located in Newark and Hebron during the construction of the mueruon power house and substation at Newark and the addition to the Hebron power house, having superintended this work. He has won a very high place in the esteem of all these with whom he has become acquainted, while here, and is a young man who most thoroughly deserves this confidence and esteem.

Miss Smucker is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smucker and has been prominent in Newark's best social circles, as well as educational, having for several years been one of the best known teachers in the public schools. Both young people are deserving of happiness and prosperity, and for these their host of friends devoutly wish.

STOLTZ—BAUSCH.

Mr. William Stoltz, a well-known painting contractor of this city, and Miss Clara Bausch, daughter of Mrs. Kate Bausch, also of this city, were married on Wednesday evening. The ceremony took place at the St. Francis de Sales church and was performed by the Rev. Father Watterson at 7 o'clock in the presence of quite a number of the friends of the contracting parties. At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's mother, 21 German street, where a reception was held and where a delicious wedding supper was served, splendid music being furnished during the evening by a mandolin and guitar club. Mr. and Mrs. Stoltz, who have the congratulations of many friends, will make their home on German street.

PARSON—WILLEY.

Mr. Arthur Preston Willey, of the B. & O. shops, and Miss Lettie May Willey, of Allston avenue, were married Tuesday evening at the residence of the Rev. H. N. Miller on North Fifth street.

CARSPECKEN—HUTSON.

Many Newark and Granville people will be interested in the following reading notice from Pittsburg:

In the Beth Eden Baptist church, Allegheny, of which the bride's father is pastor, Miss Lettie May Hutson and Henry L. Carspecken were united in marriage Tuesday evening by Rev. Dr. J. S. Hutson. Miss Agnes Carspecken, a sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Agnes Snyder, of Warren, Pa., and Miss Grace Williams, of Allegheny. The ushers were James Frank Hutson, George D. Hutson and Arthur Hutson, brothers of the bride and Miles C. Cunningham. Mr. Carspecken had as his best man Frederick Le Roy Hutson, another brother of the bride. A niece and nephew, Helen and Herbert Hutson, were the flower children, and carried, alarge basket of pink sweet peas in the bridal procession. The bride wore a dainty white mull gown, with a veil, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Her only ornament was a brooch of pearls and diamonds, the gift of the groom. The maids wore white gowns, with green sashes, and carried white daisies and Farlayenese ferns. A reception at the home of the bride followed the church ceremony. After a trip to the Adirondacks, Mr. and Mrs. Carspecken will be at home in Morgantown, W. Va. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Baker, of Whitewater, Wis., and Mrs. John Gleason, of Morgantown.

VERDICT

DEPRIVES CHURCHES OF THE THOMAS PROPERTY.

Jury Finds Paper Writing Produced in Court Not Valid—Goes to Circuit Court.

In the case of Harriet M. Wilson, et al., vs. Andrew J. Cada, executor of Harriet E. Thomas, the common pleas jurors returned a verdict finding that the paper-writing produced in Court and heretofore admitted to probate, is not valid.

The effect of the verdict is to deprive the Welsh Hills Baptist church, The New School Baptist church of Concord, Ohio, and The Baptist church of Johnstown, of the property devised to them in the will, and the property will go to decedent's relatives. The will was contested on the ground that Mrs. Thomas, at the time she executed the will, had not sufficient mental qualifications to understand the nature of her act. It is expected to take the case to the Circuit court with a view of having that court pass upon a number of exceptions taken by defendants throughout the trial, and to have the Circuit court order a re-trial of the case, Kibler & Kibler; Hunter; Daugherty, Stasel.

UNIQUE ELK UNIFORMS.

Baltimore Elks have perfected plans to make a big hit at the Cincinnati convention. They will gather together the most skilled musicians in Baltimore to compete for the band contest prize, and for costume they will appear as firemen, with blue suits, red shirts and buff helmets.

They will also take with them a steam fire engine, to be manipulated by firemen who are members of Baltimore lodge. The delegation will be headed by a lady attired as a fireman, who will also march in the street procession. The Baltimore crowd will number 100, and will be augmented by state lodges, which will be picked up on the trip West.

The lodge from Bluefields, West Virginia, will march as miners, red shirt, dark trousers, lamps and picks, complete. They will have 150 men in line.

Not Frank E. Crawford.

The report has gained circulation that the suit recently brought against Enoch Diehl by Frank L. Crawford for $15,000 damages for alienating the affections of his wife was brought by Frank E. Crawford, the popular Baltimore and Ohio conductor. This is a mistake. It was Frank L. Crawford who brought the suit.
